PRICE FIVE CENTS

DRY GOODS, MILLINERY, ETC.

J. M. HIGH, THE REGULATOR AND CONTROLLER OF LOW PRICES! 46, 48 AND 50 WHITEHALL STREET.

In previous advertisements we have mentioned Special Bargains for Monday only, but on account of the immense throng which contemplate visiting Atlanta during the exhibition of the "Fall of Pompeii," we will place on our Bargain Counters each day the coming week such unprecedented Bargains in Dry Goods as have never been given our customers before in the history of our rising city. Each one of the following items will be a Bargain, unmatched at other stores, and is worthy the consideration of any intending purchaser.

10 cases of printed Lawns in pattern lengths of 10 and 12 yards to be sold at 2c yard. These goods cannot be matched elsewhere for less than 5c. 250 pieces of the famous Onoko Chambrays, sold the world over 12½c, visitors shall have them at 5c yard. From last week's auction sales we received 100 pieces of plaid Gingham in choice patterns, and we call special attention to to them at the wonderfully low price of 4c yard. They are worth 10c yard anywhere else in the United States.

8 boxes of beautiful new designs in Domestic Challies. This is the latest and best summer dress goods fabric. We will offer them at 4½c yard, and we defy any competitor to meet this price. 65 pieces of Pacific Batiste, full 36 inches wide, handsome designs and warranted fast colors, for a real genuine inducement we will sell them at 8½c yard, and guarantee that the same goods cannot be bought elsewhere for less than 12½c yard. On our famous remnant counter the coming week we will sell the large accumulation of odds and ends of remnants of all classes of wash dress goods at 5c yard. This lot will include best quality of Gingham and Chambrays in short lengths, remnants of wool Challies, remnants of Sateens of all grades, remnants of all qualities of white goods, and in fact, everything in the world necessary to make children's dresses. People with little children to provide for will be doing themselves an injustice to miss this great sale of remnants. 85 pieces of genuine French Sateens, not common domestic stuff, but real imported goods, worth 35c yard, will be closed out at 12½c yard. Remember, we absolutely guarantee them to be French goods, the finest quality manufactured, and the patterns are simply beautiful. We have just received 9 cases Domestic Sateens, in new and stylish designs. They have come in rather late and we intend to slaughter them tomorrow. We will commence selling them at 8½c yard. Earlier in the season we got 12½c for the identical same goods, and other stores are getting 12½c yet. They are worth seeing if you need a cheap sateen. 100 pieces of Sheer Satin Plaid White Lawns from last week's Pre-emptory Sales at 7½c yard. They can't be matched for less than 12½c. 37 bolts of China Silks, in solid colors, all the latest shades warranted all silk, tomorrow we will offer them at 29c yard. This is the "cheapest yet," and it "downs them all." We have every shade and will sell you any quantity. All the latest colorings in Surah Silks at 43c yard. This is a bargain that is worthy of notice. We have done an immense business on this article this season and we are sure there is nothing in the market that touches it. 300 of La Tosca Parasols, long handles with gold caps and finest quality of Silk Warp Gloria cloth. Our price from tomorrow on will be $1.45. Come in and look at this bargain. The low price will astonish you.

EMBROIDERIES!
Our stock has been lately replenished with the latest novelties now out and our customers have wondered how we could handle such an immense lot. It's the price that moves them, and the coming week we intend to move them out with a vengeance. We show everything a customer could consistently wish, the eye could desire, or the designer suggest, and our prices are away down below all others.

Gent's Balbriggan Underwear.
Gent's Drilling Drawers.
Gent's Novelty Neckwear.
Gent's Socks in endless profusion, all at prices as low as the lowest.
Also another 1000 dozen of Gent's 1900 all linen 4-ply Collars at 10c apiece. They certainly beat anything ever shown in Atlanta.

are already famous. We sell twice as many as any other house, either wholesale or retail, and it's the low price that does the work. Special lots of fine Pearl Buttons in all sizes for tomorrow at 2½c and 5c per doz.

MILLINERY!
In millinery the coming week we will surpass all previous efforts to please an appreciative public. We have lately received everything new and desirable in Hats and Flowers, and a single trial will convince you that our prices are right and styles correct.

styles. We have now in stock the latest things the manufacturers have put upon the market. Have you seen our 8½c Sateens? They are a marvel of beauty and cheapness, and are worth stopping to look at.

and on all goods in this department we candidly and honestly warrant our price against all competition.

Gent's Gauze Un-

NOTIONS!
Our Notion department is the most complete in this city. Our line of Pearl Buttons

HOSIERY!
We can furnish anything a purchaser of Hosiery could possibly wish. Our Black Hose for Ladies and Misses have an enviable reputation, and the prices we guarantee to be as low as same quality of goods can be bought anywhere in the world.

SATEENS!
In our Sateen department we show an unmatched array of novelties in both French and domestic Domestics.

Genuine Fruit of the Loom 8c yard; "Pelham" Bleaching, full 4-4, 6½c yard. Pepperell or Mohawk Valley bleached Sheeting, 10-4 wide, 24c yard. For the coming week we will cut all domestic goods to a living profit

DRESS GOODS.
Our Woolen Goods department is too large for this season of the year. Large shipments of imported goods have come in too late, and to sell them we must make the price low. This next week we will make marked reductions in the price of dress goods of all kinds, and intending purchasers would do well to pay us a visit.

SAVED BY A MONK.

A VERY TOUCHING STORY FROM THE ALAMO.

How the Life of a Mother and Child Were Restored to Those They Loved—Life in Troubled Times.

"It seems absurd to me," said a well known Atlanta gentleman, "that so many Americans who have seen their own country, I'd actually be ashamed of the ignorance that some Americans abroad seem proud to want concerning their native land. Very few New Yorkers, who take an annual trip abroad have ever seen California and Mexico. I am a European by birth, yet these countries open to me a rich field of beauty and romance, a fertile field for the artist and poet. A Roman Catholic land must have a history, and an interesting one, for the faith of the followers of Catholicism is entwined with every act of thought of their lives. It concerns their private and public existence; mingles with their love, hate and ambition.

One of the most interesting buildings to me in the west was the Alamo, in San Antonio. There during the Mexican war, blood flowed like water and the

THE CHIEF OF DYING MEN mingled with the prayers of the monks for their souls. The place is silent and deserted now, save for the wind creeping softly and lifting the tress from the crannies as a loving spirit might lift the hair of a dead woman. There are stones still stained with blood, and the story goes that upon the anniversary of its falling it becomes warm and liquid again, and if one walks around the ruins that night there is a feeling of dead bodies beneath the feet. Even the monks grew uneasy in this place after some years, and said they could not sleep for the presence of WARMED MEN AT MIDNIGHT, and that they must seek a holy haunt for the saying of their prayers. Places are worn by their kneeling in the floors of their cells and the thought came that they must have prayed harder in the dead hours of fear."

There is a tale of love and pity connected with those bloody days which outlives its beautiful humanity all the stories of carnage. A young Spaniard was wildly in love with an English girl who lived in San Antonio. His rival, a young Scotchman, won and married her. But the Spaniard was passionate and revengeful. He knelt in one of the dark, high pews of the cathedral and around his white teeth as they plighted their troth, and as the woman he loved came down the long aisle, looking like a white cloud irradiated with the sunshine of happiness, he laid his hot hand on his breast that it might not burst from pain, and swore an oath to his patron saint that he would be avenged within a year.

His revenge came in a few months, when after a fierce battle between the Mexicans and Texans, he galloped to the home of the young Scotchman's wife, found her alone, dragged her by the force of his physical strength to his horse, and tied her behind him, stamping her to his waist with his hand. Her cries were of no avail. The cries of wounded and dying were too common to heed in those days.

She finally lost consciousness, and arrived at the Alamo, he halted and lifted what seemed to be a lifeless burden up the dark stone steps of the monastery. The clock chimed midnight, as one of the holy fathers, cowed and sorrowful-faced, opened to him the portal.

"Take this poor girl," she is my sister," said the Spaniard. She has married an enemy to our nation and religion. He has treated her brutally, and her mind is distraught. She will tell you when she comes to her senses that she loves her husband, but she does not. She was wretched with him, and her lunacy is the result of his brutality."

The monk knew the Spaniard to be a man of noble blood and of the noblest of her beauty and fragrance, it came to him that perhaps this creature, the like of whom he had never before seen, was nearer heaven than the stone walls and floors that made his earthly existence.

But was he not sinning? His conscience gave a sharp cut, and he turned and fled in fear of the devil and sought his father superior, together they returned gathering the few comforts from their meagre store to minister to her wants. They took their coarse garments and spread upon the stone couch to make it softer and, from the collar, they brought a bottle of rarest old wine, and poured some of it between her set lips. She revived for a moment, opened her eyes as one who walked in sleep, then closed them again and breathed like a child in the land of slumber.

The next day when she awoke, fully conscious, she TOLD THEM HER STORY, but they treated her with the kind unheedingness that gives a complaining child. They made themselves slaves for her pleasure and treated her as gently as the gen. fleet mothers treat their children. She was as dead to the outside world as though she had never lived within it. She almost went mad thinking of the anguish and horrible doubt and uneasiness that her husband must endure. She found her wishes unheeded, so gave up protesting and lapsed into a state of silent melancholy.

One morning she lay with a new born infant in her arms and because of the young heart beating against her own, LIFE SEEMED WORTH SOMETHING and she took courage and determined to live and hope for the best.

But her life, even in those peaceful walls, was to be rent with the cries of dead and dying for who her cries were six weeks old she sat listening to the horrible sounds of battle outside the Alamo. There came to her the cries of the dying and the curses of living hate. The mingling of Spanish and English tongues.

It was midnight and the battle had ceased. She stood and listened to the sound of the almost dropped her child from her arms at the sound of the words she heard. Some Mexican soldiers spoke her husband's name with curses and threats. "He was a dog," they said.

A BULL-NECKED SCOTCH DOG, "but he had fought like a lion and the men in his regiment were only men saved. They were camped outside the town."

The girl listened no more. She crept swiftly to the cell of the monk who had taken her in that first terrible night. She took his hand and knelt in prayer. She took his hand and led him silently to her cell. Standing there, with her great anguished blue eyes alight, she seemed to look above him in some celestial sphere. "Look at me," she said, "and listen and believe that I am telling the truth. Look in my face and see the truth. If you cannot see it there you are not holy and you belong not to God, because

GOD AND TRUTH ARE ONE. "As I expect to stand before my maker at the day of judgment, I do swear to you that I was a loving and happy wife and that the man who brought me here hated me because I did not love him and took this horrible revenge upon myself and the man I married. That man has been fighting outside these walls all day, and he is now encamped with his men on the outskirts of the city. I have told you his name, now I want you to go and find him."

"But," protested the monk,

"No, no," she cried, "you shall have no reasons against it. Here are the reasons for it. A child and a loving woman. Are not these enough?"

The man of God bowed his head and knelt and kissed her skirt hem. She placed her hand on his head. "I bless you in his name," she said. "Now come here."

He followed her to the lattice. "Look down," she said, pointing to the clear stream of water below, on either side of which were camped sleeping soldiers. "You must unlock this lattice and let your garments down by means of those ropes. I will be together and you must float down that stream out of danger of those men and find my husband and tell him I am here and will come to him."

"The priestly silence obeyed as though moving under a spell. She watched his dark form float down undiscovered, and waited as one who stands before death. In two hours he returned. She could not open her lips to question, but she saw a good omen of hope in his eyes as he said, 'I have found him.'"

"Thank God!" she cried under her breath, clasping her child to her heart. "You have found him," she said, "I did," said the holy father. "Float down the stream with your child and he will be waiting for you and will see you and call you by name."

"And I shall answer," she said. "The man of silence and prayer watched the mother and child glide away on the breast of the shallow water with a feeling of thankfulness and a holy mission fulfilled. "And the united man and wife and child, were they happy ever after?" questioned a listener to Dr. Ewbank's story. "Yes," he replied. "They lived happily until they all died with yellow fever. The Topaz remedies were undiscovered then. The fever of all sorts was the curse of that region. During my travels and these lands where malaria of every description was killing the natives, I never had a touch of it, for I took Topaz Cinchona Cordial three times a day."

Two great enemies—Hoods Sarsaparilla and impure blood. The latter is utterly defeated by the peculiar medicine.

His FIRST VOTE.

But He Did Waited to Fool With a Bar.

From the Detroit Free Press.

It was a state election in Alabama, and among the crowd filling the little town where I happened to be stopping were some queer characters. Among the queerest were an old man and his son—the father about 60 years old, the son about to cast his first vote. The boy had primed up pretty well and by 10 o'clock in the forenoon he was saying:

"Father, get me ten to hold me, for if I turn loose this town won't be now!"

"Be calm, Jonas, be calm," advised the old man as he patted him on the shoulder.

"Whoopee! y! y! What's the matter with you? You're a critter, ain't you?"

"That's no critter, ain't you?" said the old man, "but you're a critter, ain't you?"

"That's no critter, ain't you?" said the old man, "but you're a critter, ain't you?"

WATCHING EACH OTHER.

THE LACK OF CONFIDENCE IS MAN-KIND.

Amp Talks of What a Good Time There Would Be on This Earth if Everybody Was Honest and We Trusted Each Other.

Yesterday an old friend was discoursing to us in a lawyer's office. His presence brought good cheer and loving kindness, for every thought of his heart is a benediction. When he left us there was silence—expressed, sympathetic silence, until one of the party said: "He is a good man. To say he is an eloquent and learned man is not his highest compliment. I believe he is about the best man that I know."

Another said with a sad earnestness: "I wish that the world was full of them." And another replied: "Well, wouldn't it simplify matters?" That expression struck me as peculiar, but the more I thought of it the better I liked it. Wouldn't it simplify matters? It would break up that lawyer's office sure. No longer would they live off the quarrel of mankind, but they would live better off of their love. I reckon. What would become of Judge Blackley's court and Judge Miller's court and Judge Neil's court, and all the other courts. Our chief justice would be overworked no more and could attend all summer on Screams, mountains. There would have been no case, home case, nor Tulin estate case, nor Woolf, nor Hawes, nor Echols! The courthouses would be turned into churches. No sheriff to try at the door. "Oh yes, oh yes, oh yes, oh yes, the superior court has met according to adjournment—God save the state and the honor of the court. The clerks are all here, no jurors forced from their farms, no witnesses, no defendants on the criminal code, no jails with locks and bars, no murders or bloody fights with pistols in their hands. Wouldn't it be splendid? Suppose we try to get up such a state of affairs for a week, or even a day just to see the difference. We'd see our churches brighten up and our choirs be happy when all the little feuds and heart burnings were banished? Wouldn't the newspapers and treatises be turned into love letters? Wouldn't the convict camps all be burst in twenty-four hours for Governor Gordon would have to pardon every mother's son because they would all be reformed. You couldn't find a lock in a hardware store. Nobody would want a lock—not even a bank. THEY DO NOT WANT IT.

ATLANTA'S SALOON-KEEPERS DO NOT WANT A CHANGE.

The Movement Looking to Keeping Open Later in the Evening is Not Indorsed by the Leading Saloonkeepers—Different Views From Different Men.

It has been rumored that the saloon-keepers would petition council to allow them to keep open until midnight, during the performance of the "Last Days of Pompeii" show.

The Constitution's editorial of yesterday stirred the water from the bottom.

If there is any organized movement of the kind, it has not been discovered. A number of saloon-keepers yesterday expressed their opinion on the subject.

Smith & Barnes, the saloon-keepers at Peachtree street, said: "We are in favor of allowing the law to remain in full force. The Constitution's editorial was just on the right line. We do not care to stay open longer than ten o'clock, and would not sign any such petition to council."

F. J. Wallace, on Peachtree street, said: "I am in favor of the law remaining just as it is. I get enough of it by 10 o'clock, anyway. I do not desire any extension of the time of closing."

Blumenthal & Bickert, on Marietta street, said: "If the law was changed for others to keep open, we would close at 10 o'clock, anyway. We would not ask for any change for the 'Pompeii' although, if others desire it, we are in favor of a general law."

B. R. Hollis, on Marietta street, said: "I had rather close at 10 than not, at any and all times."

S. Marks & Co., on Decatur street, said: "We are right square against any such change. We think that 10 o'clock is long enough for respectable people to stay open. After that hour, the fussy people come in and it is enough to disgust strangers to see them cutting and shooting around. It might be worse than twenty-five or thirty dollars to us to remain open till midnight during the week, but we would not do it for any such consideration. We are in favor of the law remaining just as it is at present."

If it were to be changed we would have to stay open, but we do not desire it, as it gives us and our clerks a chance to rest more, and we do not mind business as we wish between five o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock at night."

Mr. Tom Munn, whose place is on Decatur street, said: "I don't care about feeling with the law. Unless it could be changed permanently, let it remain as it is. The city council has fixed the matter at a certain point for closing, and I am perfectly willing for it to remain at that. My business is better than it was before prohibition, and then few days ago was a year ago. I am very well satisfied with the existing restrictions, and I do not wish any change."

Mr. Steve Grady said: "I think that we ought to keep open till twelve; the wholesale houses do that, and we ought to have the same privilege. It would be a chance for us to approach the city council with any such petition, for if it was granted for just the few days during the 'Pompeii' show, and we should petition for an extension, afterwards, they would ask us why we did not request an extension while we had it. I don't think that any such petition has appeared, or that anything has occurred to warrant the publications that have appeared in the newspapers."

Mr. William Hogan said: "I don't care a cent for these few days. The matter was brought up by the editor of the Constitution. I was sick and, I knew nothing at all about it until I read of the petition in THE CONSTITUTION'S editorial."

Mr. John H. Jentzen, who is the last saloon-keeper on Whitehall street, said: "I am in favor of a general law to allow the saloons to stay open till twelve, for as these few days are concerned I don't care anything about it. Let the law remain as it is. I don't believe that the saloon-keepers of Atlanta have organized themselves for any such purpose, and I don't believe that the facts in the case will bear out the newspaper reports."

Mr. A. Thayer, of Whitehall street, said: "I would not give a cent to stay open these few nights."

Mr. Hoffman, at the Kimball, said: "I am in favor of allowing the saloons to stay open during the show. How else are the main openings to be accommodated? They are not accustomed with the laws, and regulations of Atlanta. Let the saloons stay open and prevent all the disappointments and annoyances that will follow."

Mr. A. Hays said: "I would not care a copper, whether they stayed open till midnight or not. I believe that we ought to be allowed to remain open until twelve, but so far as these few days are concerned, they are worth but little to us."

The general impression among the saloon-keepers is that the movement was started by a few men, who would be benefited by the change. They claim that conforming to the house ordinances, as they have been doing during the last two years, they are acting in perfect good faith, and unless the general law is changed they are dead against any temporary changes.

THE FRISKY CUCUMBER.

AND OTHER VEGETABLES WHICH ARE NOW IN MARKET.

What the Atlanta Market Offers in the Way of Early Vegetables—Where They Come From and What They Cost.

Fresh fruits and vegetables.

How many people are there in the city of Atlanta who, when they ask their grocer for an article in the fruit or vegetable line stop to think where that which they ask for comes from?

Or how many trouble themselves to ask whether the crop of strawberries or any other fruit or vegetable is up to the average of the preceding seasons, or whether the general quality is good, bad or indifferent?

How many are there who inquire whether the crop has been early or late, or think whether or not they paid more per quart for berries or other eatables during a corresponding period of the year previous.

How many Atlantians, especially those of the sterner sex, think of these things, while they are enjoying the best that the market affords?

In nine cases out of ten, just so the quality is good and the price not much too high, these questions do not enter the mind of the average citizen at all. And if he is told by his grocer that tomatoes or beans or anything of that sort are likely to remain at a pretty high figure on account of drought or for any other reason, he takes it as a matter of course; considers it a part of the grocer's business to talk that way in order to sell his goods, but hardly ever considers whether there is any ground for the prediction or not.

The fact is, just as long as fruits and vegetables continue to grow and are brought to market, the people will buy them no matter what the price, or where they come from or how long they will last.

A round among the grocers in Atlanta is quite interesting to one who wishes to study the market and the crops.

For instance, it might be interesting to know that the vegetables we eat for dinner today were gathered in Florida yesterday afternoon, and are landed in our market almost as soon as far away out at the Chattahoochee river could market his truck.

Most of the early vegetables received in Atlanta so far are brought from Florida and New Orleans, though some are beginning to come in from the surrounding country; but only a small part of the early truck is raised around Atlanta at this season.

About the only vegetables which are now being brought to the city on wagons are English peas, onions and some beans.

Grocers will tell you that the strawberry crop around Atlanta is almost an entire failure. The berries are of a very poor quality, and the yield exceedingly small, owing to a great extent to the unusually dry weather at this time of the year. This will have a corresponding effect on other vegetables, and has already cut short the pea crop. Strawberries have been on the market for about two months, but the grocers say they will soon be gone now unless the weather changes, as the Florida crop is out and Atlanta is depending on the surrounding country for her supply. The lettuce shipped to the Atlanta market were, as a rule, very fine, and the first of the season brought all the way from 40 to 75 cents a bushel. The prevailing price at present is from 10 to 15 cents.

A few dewberries have made their appearance in market, and though they are scarce the prices asked for them range from fifteen to twenty cents per quart.

New potatoes are becoming more plentiful and have dropped in price from one dollar to fifty and sixty cents a bushel. The potatoes are all shipped from a distance, a great many from Mobile.

Tomatoes are just beginning to show their red faces in the grocery stores, and the price asked for them is not unusually high for this season of the year. The commission men say that the crop is a fine one in the southern part of the state and Florida, and that it will not be very long before they are almost dirt cheap, and then it won't be long before the market surrounding country will begin to send in the luscious red beauties.

The Atlanta markets are being fully supplied just now with lettuce, radishes, onions and a few peas and beans, but the beets, cabbage and other vegetables are mostly brought from different southern points.

This year there has been more asparagus in the Atlanta market than during any other previous year, and the quality has been decidedly superior. Three or four years ago there was very little asparagus grown in this part of the state; in fact, all most none at all, and it was very seldom that it could be had at any price, as nearly any was shipped here from other points.

Probably the latest addition to the early vegetables is the cucumber. These are worth from three to five cents apiece.

Spring chicken, although it is not a vegetable, is generally supposed to make its debut along with the other things which tickle the palate of the epicure about this time of the year. From all accounts, the spring chicken crop is a failure, and the prospects are that most of the lovers of the domestic bird will have to wait till summer for their spring chicken. Just now they are very scarce, very dear and very small.

It is hardly time yet for the early fruits to make their appearance, at least in any very large quantities, though a few cherries have been marketed, and also a few peaches.

But in about a month the Georgia watermelon will be here in all its glory, and then the colored citizen will be in his element, or rather a large quantity of the element will be in him. But the colored citizen will not have a monopoly of the thing by any means, for his white brethren are very nearly on a par with him when it comes to devouring the Georgia melon.

Taking all things into consideration the Atlanta vegetable markets is in a very fair condition, that is, it is well supplied as it ever was heretofore, and the quality of the truck is anything, better than usual. The truck was marketed about as early as customary, and the prices as a general thing as low as in preceding years.

ATLANTA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

An Important Meeting Yesterday—The Election of Officers Next Week.

Among the large number that attended the meeting of the Atlanta Horticultural society yesterday, was Mr. S. M. Wayman, of Spaulding county, a very successful horticulturist, who gave the Atlanta society a short and interesting address.

Mr. W. D. Beale contributed to the display some thirty varieties of roses, besides specimens of double pink poppies, pomegranates and other flowers, besides the popular Japanese.

Mr. Galeran, in addition to the Galeran, Sharpless and Monarch of the West strawberries, exhibited fine specimens of Black-Cap raspberries.

The paper of Mr. V. E. Lambert on "Insects Injurious to Roses," was well received. It treated of beetles, bugs and flies.

A general discussion followed on both rose and strawberry culture, the ladies present evidencing their interest by asking numerous questions, all of which were answered.

Mr. Charles Decker on next Saturday will speak on asparagus.

Mrs. John R. Gordon, Mrs. C. W. Smith and Mrs. H. Lewis were elected members.

On next Saturday the annual election of officers will come off. There are quite a number of prominent members named in connection with the several offices, but there are no avowed candidates.

The interest in the meeting is deepening and the presence of the ladies there is imparting new life to its membership. The venerable chairman of the fruit committee has donated a new pair of gold eye glasses.

The Lucky Number.

Ticket No. 2,791, won the watch at the Havana Clear store. The winner will receive same on presentation of the ticket at No. 12 Pryor street.

SOME CURRENT GOSSIP.

The Ohio editors who spent a few hours in Atlanta last week came with the expectation that the town would be turned inside out in their honor. The managers of the excursion—if it had any managers—led them to believe that Atlanta had extended them a formal invitation to come and be wined, dined and made merry with, when the fact is nobody in Atlanta knew of their coming. They got into their heads, among other ideas, that the press of the city would give them a big blow-out and that a feature of the programme would be an auto tour of the city. By unanimous consent of the others the work of replying to this address fell to either Hon. Dan Ryan, Ohio's secretary of state, or Colonel W. H. Taylor, of the Engineer. These gentlemen agreed that there was only one way to decide which should do the honors. So Fred Blankner fixed the straw. The longest straw went to Colonel Taylor.

"Then I began to work," said the colonel when telling of the incident. "I studied up on the Okefenokee and these early fellows until I knew everything there was to be known. I tell you I had prepared the best best impromptu speech you ever saw. I had a copy of it all ready for you to publish and I would have astonished the natives."

The tendency to rhyme is a difficult thing to break away from when one gets a firm hold on a man. A few days ago a letter came to the Kimball with the following address:

In Atlanta, Ga., at the Kimball.
There is a maid with fingers nimble,
Making dresses for a lady.
Heard there.

Take this letter to her quickly,
In the care of Mrs. Chipley,
Who will please deliver it To Miss Peck.

The festive postal clerk had left his mark on the envelope in this wise: "Rats!"

Some Kimball house people had an experience last week which may be funny to other people but was not particularly so to them. A party had been made up to take breakfast out at that popular little resort, Little Switzerland. The evening before the gentlemen who gave the party telegraphed to the proprietors of the resort and arranged for the nicest kind of a breakfast. The next day the picnicers rose bright and early and the first dunnery took them to the park. Each was accompanied by a decidedly prolix appetite and picnicers, appetites and all, were soon at Little Switzerland. The landlord had prepared a most delightful breakfast with all the delicacies of the season, and this was eagerly devoured and heartily enjoyed by everybody else. The early picnicer gets the best breakfast, but the Kimball house party was not the early picnicer in this case, for another party of gentlemen and ladies had visited the resort and the breakfast had been devoured by them. And that is why Hugh Porter and the Kimball house people brought their appetites back with them.

All the farmers' organizations of Georgia will soon have permanent headquarters in Atlanta.

Everybody who knows of the dramatic writers of this country knows that the foremost critic of the west is Mr. Elwyn A. Barron, of the Chicago Inter-Ocean. Theatrical people appreciate a good word from Mr. Barron, for he is a man from almost any other writer, east and west, for his criticisms are always just and fair. The few lines quoted here are from his pen and refer to the performance of Mr. Will R. Owen, so well and favorably known here. Speaking of his performance in "The Case of the Victim,"

Mr. Barron's new play, Mr. Barron says: "Mr. Owen is admirable in his part, acting with marked discretion a trying role, and in a way to make clear to the audience that under the self possession that distinguishes him outwardly heart and conscience are kept stirring by remorse because of his crime."

The news of Mr. Owen's success is very gratifying to his many Atlanta friends, who believe that he has a brilliant future in his profession.

Bert Davis, who comes through the south as an emblem of truth with George Wilson's minstrels, has gone into the newspaper business in Elmira, New York. He is business manager of the Elmira World.

Colonel "Bill" Taylor of the Engineer, is, by the way, prominently mentioned for the democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, and a number of counties have instructed for him despite his protests that he is no candidate. The colonel, taking to himself the mantle of the late John G. Thompson, insists that the democrats of Ohio have some chance of carrying the state.

"Now here's a prediction, and I'll bet a case of Put-in-lay Pommeys see that I'm right: Jim Campbell will be nominated and elected governor of Ohio, and will go to the United States senate. That's what I believe, and I believe I'm right."

Mr. Joe Thompson has a queer little pet in his office—a manatee.

The Zouaves were highly complimented on their appearance and the success of their entertainment. They will go to Galveston to contest for that Zouave prize.

There is only one place in Atlanta where you can buy watches and jewelry at one dollar per week and get the goods on first payment, and that is at Blue's, 97 and 99 Peachtree street. TAKE NO RISK, buy your goods there. Just above First M. E. church, Repair work a specialty.

THAT PEACHTREE BELLE.

As I was walking down Peachtree street,
Inhaling perfume from flowers sweet,
There burst upon my waking sight,
A vision fair as morning light.

Her quip and merriment and face so fair,
Her azure eyes and golden hair,
Bewitched me—drew me on to meet,
I followed as if in a dream.

At last she left me, cruel fate,
And closed with care the mansion gate,
To leave her name, I thought, 'tis said,
But never ending seemed that week.

We met, oh crowning joy,
Life was Heaven without alloy,
My love to her I did confide,
She was to be my Peerless Bride.

Provided, George, she gently said,
You'll promise this before we wed,
That when the while the tide shall ebb,
Shall you consider this a task.

O keep within our medicine chest,
Satin's Blood Syrup, the very best,
For thanks to this alone you see,
Your wife a model of purity.

For thin and dejected, pale and feeble,
No hope of relief, I sorely grieved,
When to my great joy she came, beyond measure,
They brought for my comfort this greatest of treasures.

For Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Nervous Prostration,
Is cured without fail by this King of the Nation,
No 20 Wall street is the distill, and
And you'll say when cured 'tis far better than gold.

NOTICE.

WE HAVE THIS DAY SOLD OUR REAL EState and renting business to Messrs. A. J.

King and J. B. Roberts, who will continue the same at our old stand, 37 Marietta street. We take pleasure in recommending Messrs. King & Roberts as being energetic and reliable business men. They are well known in the city, having been in business here for several years. Our object in selling out is on account of ill health. Thanking our customers for the past favors we trust they will continue the same with our successors. We will continue to have our office with them for several months in order to close up our unsettled business.

LEAK & LYLE.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 25, 1889.

WE HAVE BOUGHT THE REAL ESTATE and renting business of Messrs. Leak &

Lyle.

We would be pleased to have you continue your business with us, which shall, at all times, have our prompt and personal attention to collecting rents, and all other business entrusted to our care. We hope to be able to render a complete statement for all rents due on the first of each month.

Messrs. Leak & Lyle will still have their office with us in closing up their old business, for several months. They will assist us in the business during their stay.

We refer you to Messrs. P. Romare, Atlanta National Bank, Lowry Banking company, and any business firm in the city. Respectfully yours,

J. B. ROBERTS.

DRY GOODS, ETC.

D. H. DOUGHERTY & CO.,

THE DISORGANIZERS OF HIGH PRICES.

On DRY GOODS, SHOES, ETC.

NO PRELIMINARIES, BUT DOWN TO BUSINESS.

We will put on sale Monday, and continue until closed out, the entire stock of those beautiful 20c Egyptian Lace Muslins. They will not be 20c, but go right down to 12c. 753 yards left of those elegant check Cheviots. "Just for fun," we will close them out at 50c. No "tale" about this. They are worth, any day, 50c.

663 yards exquisite shear Plaid Organdies, that is a regular 22 1/2c goods; they will go for 15c. Seeing is believing. You must see these goods to appreciate what they are.

1,877 yards Torchon Lace, that all you have to do is to see it. Then buy you will.

Big bargains in Shoes this week.

All that big shipment of elegant French Satteens will be put on sale at the slaughtering prices of 20 and 25c. These Satteens are cheap enough at 20 and 25c, but to help out things this week we will sell them at 20 and 25c. We will also offer for sale the entire stock of C. O. Checo French design Satteens at 50c; could sell them at 10c, but our price this week will be 50c.

The fall of Pompeii is a small thing compared to the fall of our prices.

Will open Monday 10,000 yards beautiful Pompadour figured Lawn at and about zero. If you want to see these lawns.

All those 40c, 50c, 55c and 62c white Plaid Organdies will go this week at 20, 25 and 30c. See these you must.

We have about 1,572 yards of those 16c beautiful India Plaid Lawns that will be put on the bargain table at 5c.

We will offer the handsomest line of colored Muls this week you ever saw. They are as sheer as the wind and as light as the evening dew. Just the thing you want, and will be sold regardless of value.

Don't forget that we sell you Woolen Dress Goods at your own price. Hot weather is a great lever for you, and all woolen goods must be sold at once.

All those 11c Laco Check Bunting will be sold this week at 5c. This looks like murder for competition, but we are going to entertain you this week with the biggest bargains you ever saw.

We mean to give you the pleasure of saying "Eureka," I am happy to know that D. H. D. & Co. never advertise anything they haven't got but always show all advertised and more too.

Chambrays, 50c; Gingham, 50c; Checked Malmesbury, 40c; Georgia Checks, 50c; Sea Island, 50c; Bleaching, 50c; Calicoes, 50c. Save your child from being burned up by the sun. Buy one of our 25c Sun Bonnets, for 15c white Bonnets worth from $1 to $1.50, will be sold this week at 40c, 45c and 50c. We are selling more bonnets than anybody, because we sell them so cheap.

We challenge the world on prices for Underwear.

Ladies' Little Vest, 15c; Ladies' French plaid Vest, 25c, 30c and 35c, that you cannot match for twice the money; Ladies' Silk Vest $1, sold everywhere at $2, our price will be $1 until this lot is closed out; Gents' Under-vest for 25c, regular 35c goods; Gents' Under-vest 70c, regular $1.20 goods; Gents' Heracles Drawers 50c, worth 80c; Gents' Sampson Jeans Drawers at 25c, regular 50c, old bachelors will do well to come to us for these goods.

We are doing the biggest Bustle business of any house south, because we keep the best stock and sell them 5 and 10c, worth 25 and 30c. Our Directoire Bustle is the thing every lady wants as soon as she sees it.

Will open Monday afternoon, one case of about 1,000 yards China Silks, in black, old rose, shrim, cream, white, pearl gray, sea shell green, etc., at 35c. This is a lot of China Silk taken off the hand of the agents at less than one-half price. They would bring 75c easily, but this week has got to be the banner week of this month, and we sell this lot of beautiful Silks at 35c.

We will close out all our Ladies' Muslin Skirts this week at about half price. Ladies, don't wait, but come at once and buy these skirts.

All that 15c white Linon de India with beautiful satin stripe will go this week at 6c. White Goods and Embroideries away down.

We will sell this week 215 pieces White India Lawn at 25c. The regular value of this lawn is 50c wholesale; 25c for this week. These white Egyptian Organdies, 1 yard wide, will be sold this week at 10c, instead of 15c.

The grandest thing for the people this week is the immense fall of D. H. Dougherty & Co.'s prices.

All those 12c figured Batiste will go down to 5c this week.

We will sell one more case of those 18c Pacific Organdies for 12c.

Of those 21c French Batiste we will sell about 250 patterns at 12c per yard. These goods are of the most exquisite Persian designs. The good are over 1 yard wide, and will be 12c in the place of 21c.

Remember our silk sale this week. China Silk, all colors, at 35c; regular 70c figured Chinas down to half price, they must be sold.

Paties Francaise, Bademiere, Royal, Armure, Gros Grain, and in addition to these will be sold some rousing bargains. Fancy Silks. This will be the biggest bargain week in Silk ever known to Atlanta.

All Dress Trimmings to go this week at 50c on the dollar.

Job lot case of Shoes worth $2.75, $3, $3.35 and $3.50, entire lot to go this week at $1.50 and $2. Now there is no use you going barefooted any longer. Come and be "shod." We are your friends. Come to us for bargains.

Embroidery cheaper than ever.

Woolen Dress Goods at your own price.

Our prices are lower this week than ever.

We will sell Embroidered Flouncings this week for about one-half factory price. We have got too many of these goods, and are going to sacrifice them in order to reduce the stock. Now, if you want a bargain you had better come to see us this week. It is nobody's business but ours if we do give Embroideries away. We have always done the Embroidery trade of Atlanta, and we are going to continue to do it. Our many advantages enable us to give you bargains, and we are going to do that very thing. Bargains is our motto.

We will sell some of the biggest bargains this week in Black Lace Flouncing you ever saw. Black Drapery Nets in endless variety. We have just opened an immense shipment of Chantilla, Fedora, Spanish, Egyptian and Directoire Black Flouncing that will be offered at less than the cost of production. Our good luck to get these goods at such low prices, and if you will give us a look on these goods it will be your good fortune to buy them.

We will sell Chinese this week cheaper than "dirt"—well, yes, cheaper than "dirt," and we know how to do this. Come and see us for Chollies.

We have always sold Bleaching, Shooting, etc., cheap, but this week we will offer anything ever offered in this or any other country. 4-4, 5-4, 6-4, 8-4 and 10-4 Shootings will be offered this week at such prices that you will think we have cornered the cotton market. Well, we have cornered some of the biggest bargains in Shooting you ever saw. Come to see us this week. You won't regret it.

We will sell this week all those $3.50 La Tosca Parasols for $2, and all those $4.75 Jacob Staff Parasols for $3. We have secured a big "job" in about 181 fancy Parasols, worth $4 to $8, that will go this week at $1.25 to $2.50. Come quick. We mean business.

Having bought the stock of one of the largest importers of houses in the east, we will offer fans this week at such prices that you can have fans. If you will buy fans of us, you will have no use for ice or refrigerators. Our fans are so cooling that all you have to do is to hang one on the ice cream can and save ice. Economy is wealth! Buy fans of us.

We will continue our Hosiery sale this week at the same prices that gave us such a boom last week. Now is the time to buy your Hosiery.

We will sell some extra big bargains this week in Notions, Gloves, Corsets, Handkerchiefs, Suspenders, Pocketbooks, Buttons, and all small articles. We are the bargain makers of Atlanta. Come to see us this week.

Remember, we offer no apologies for the extreme low prices for this week. We want your trade, and if bargains and polite attention will win, then we ask you to come.

We have got the handsomest stock of goods in the south. Don't buy until you see our stock.

We show the biggest bargains in Table Linens, Towels and Napkins this side of Belfast. We will save you money if you will come to see us this week.

AT AUCTION,

MONDAY, MAY 27 at 4.30 P. M.

Valuable central business lots.

Absolutely to the highest bidder.

The sale of these business lots offers a fine opportunity for investment in vacant central property. More substantial improvements in business houses have been made on Decatur street in the past four years than on any street in the city. Shrewd capitalists know that Decatur street is one of the main arms of the city, and they are buying up every lot that is offered for sale on this progressive street. This corner is a particularly valuable, important and central one. Belgian pavement, sidewalk, water, gas, sewers, electric lights, and street cars immediately in front of the property. Come to our office for a plat, examine the property and be on a plat, platting at 4:30 p. m. Monday, May 27th.

this report can be considered as ex-far as the southern papers are concerned rumors are on everybody's lips here, a statement having been made by Mr. Jacannot be doubted that they are very aging to him.

I have talked with him fully today, and which follows, which, certainly throws a ent light on the matter, and will be read deep interest by those who have read many reports in the case. The rumors have been discussed in the clubs and and about the city are in substance as follows:

Mr. J. U. Jackson had placed in his as broker, several batches of the bonds sold by him on commission. He held four of these one thousand dollar bonds,

he had

FAILED TO ACCOUNT FOR

Mr. Eager had been to Augusta trying a settlement of the amount, but has been to do nothing. He placed the matter hands of Major J. B. Cumming, as attto secure a settlement from Jackson, yet no legal steps have been instituted. It is hinted that the might probably exceed the limits of a transaction, and under certain circumstances might even result in the criminal of the court. Again it was declared that Eager did not desire any legal proceeding was simply to get a settlement

Jackson on the best possible terms; he was willing to accept anything, altho order to get the matter settled. That Ja-claimed a large sum due him for commis-

Eager had admitted only a very small

it as due, but in order to get the matter settled, he had said to Jackson:

"If your own statement you have thirteen thousand dollars more of the of the company than you claim are due to you. I don't admit the justice of your claim against the company, but in order to get settlement of the matter, am willing to accept your own statement of the account.

give me the thirteen thousand dollars, and which is due, according to your own and we will settle at that."

THIS JACKSON HAD FAILED TO DO, whether through inability to produce the teen thousand dollars, or for what cause not known, though it was presumed he not produce the amount. Again it was pered that Eager had filed a legal proceed-some kind against Jackson, with the el-the superior court, with the notice to Jathat he would be given a certain specifiin which to settle with the company.

did do so in the time named the pro-would be withdrawn, but if he failed to be of force and would be pushed all it was worth. In a note

Jackson had disposed of $54,000 of belonging to the Marietta and North G-railroad, and declined to render any rethe company. This is the case as it is whispered about in Augusta.

THE ORIGIN OF THE CHARGES

this made, even by report were such warrant the closest investigation, and at the bottom of the matter, I have e-ored to see all parties interested. Major ming is in New York, and Mr. Eager le-city several days ago. Mr. Bryan Cum-son and partner of Major Cumming, was the only one left in the city authority speak for Mr. Eager's side.

"I do not care," said he, "to talk, for not looked into the matter fully. I know the details of the case, further the rumor has been nearer correct in this than it generally is."

Further than this Mr. Cumming w-talk.

MR. JACKSON WAS NOT INCLINED to talk, and was surprised on being in-that he was being made the subject of general rumor.

"I first heard of the matter yesterday he, "but could not believe that I was being so unjustly accused. I confess I like to talk about the matter; but since satisfied that I am being placed before public in a wrong light, I will state min justice to myself. In the first place
